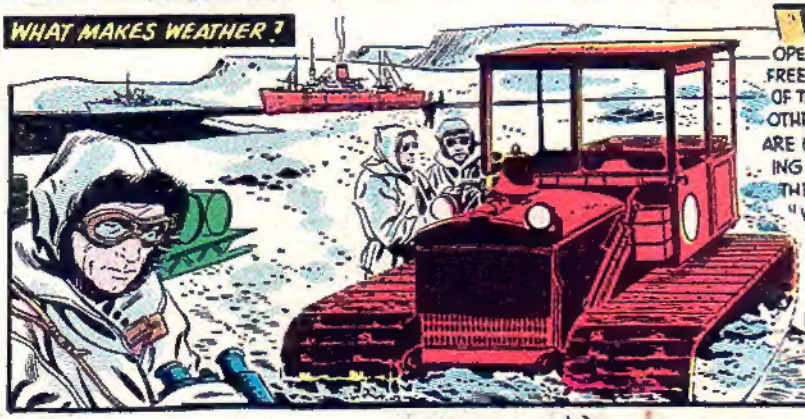
Worldwide Adventures in SCIENCE!

MANY MYSTERIES OF EARTH, OCEAN, ATMOSPHERE AND OUTER SPACE REMAIN UNSOLVED. IN JULY, 1957, SCIENTISTS FROM MORE THAN 50 NATIONS WILL BEGIN THE GEOPHYSICAL YEAR— AND WILL WORK INTENSIVELY ON PROBLEMS LIKE THESE...

WHAT MAKES WEATHER?

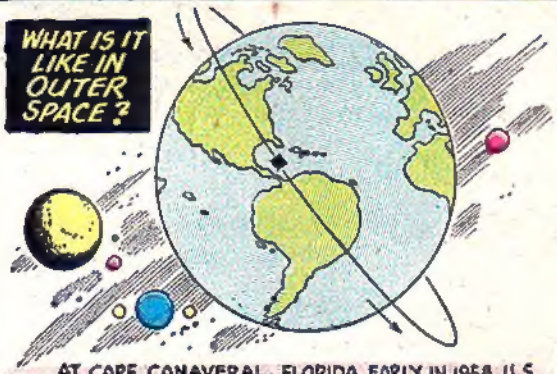


OPERATION DEEP FREEZE: EXPLORERS OF THE U.S. AND 10 OTHER NATIONS ARE NOW CONVERGING ON ANTARCTICA, THE WORLD'S "WEATHER FACTORY," TO STUDY FORCES CREATING ELECTRICAL STORMS.

PUTTING AIR CURRENTS TO WORK!

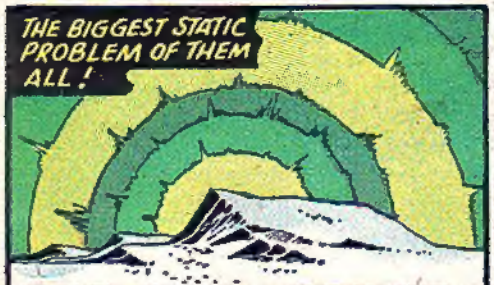
PILOTS NOW MUST SEARCH FOR THE POWERFUL JET STREAMS CIRCLING THE WORLD WHICH ADD AS MUCH AS 150 M.P.H. TO PLANE SPEED. SCIENTISTS WILL TRY TO CHART JET STREAMS, AND PREDICT THEIR CHANGES, SO THEY CAN BE "FOUND" AND USED.

WHAT IS IT LIKE IN OUTER SPACE?



AT CAPE CANAVERAL, FLORIDA, EARLY IN 1958, U.S. SCIENTISTS WILL LAUNCH THE FIRST EARTH SATELLITE, A 20-POUND METAL BALL, EQUIPPED WITH MANY RESEARCH INSTRUMENTS. TRAVELING AT 18,000 MILES AN HOUR, THIS "OBSERVATORY" WILL TELEMETER INFORMATION BACK TO EARTH ABOUT CONDITIONS 1500 MILES ABOVE.

THE BIGGEST STATIC PROBLEM OF THEM ALL!



IT IS WELL KNOWN THAT THE AURORAS—BLAZING LIGHTS OVER THE NORTH AND SOUTH POLES—HAVE MYSTERIOUS EFFECTS ON MAGNETIC COMPASSES, AND RADIO AND TV COMMUNICATION. AT SPECIAL OBSERVATION POSTS AT THE POLES, SCIENTISTS WILL TRY TO FIND OUT WHY.

CAN WE LEARN TO PREDICT EARTHQUAKES?

AS LONG AS MAN KNOWS SO LITTLE ABOUT EARTHQUAKES, THEY WILL CONTINUE TO CAUSE DEATH AND DAMAGE. SEISMOLOGISTS WILL STUDY THE EARTH'S CRUST, ITS INNER AND OUTER SHELLS AND ITS CORE, AS WELL AS HOW EARTHQUAKES FORM AND HOW STRONG THEY ARE, TO HELP DEVELOP PREDICTION METHODS ABOUT TIMES OF OCCURRENCE AND LOCATION.

WATCH FOR PROGRESS REPORTS ON THESE PROJECTS—THEY WILL BE VITALLY IMPORTANT TO PEOPLE ALL OVER THE WORLD.

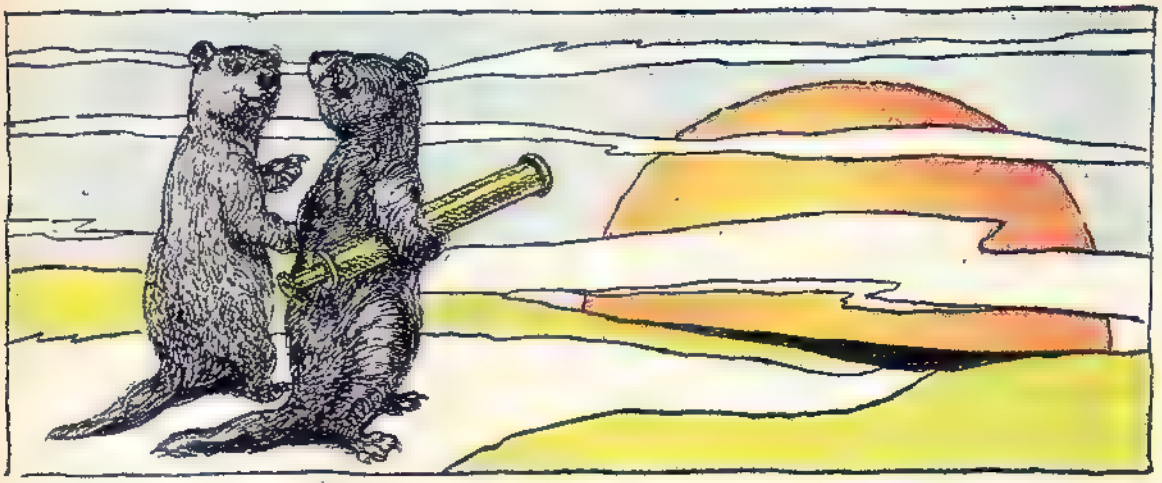
THE SKY'S THE LIMIT



LITTLE Willy Woodchuck was fascinated by the sky. For hours and hours he would gaze up at it as he lay flat on his back in his yard. In the daytime it was the sun that he peered at; at night it was the moon. And when there was no moon, it was the Milky Way that Willy watched.

One Saturday his friends said, "Want to come play ball over in the lot, Willie?"

He shook his head. "No thanks," he answered, "I'm busy." He didn't seem to be busy, lying there flat on his back, but indeed he was. Because today, he had decided, he would not look away from the heavens for one single second! Why? Well, Willy had decided to find out where it was that the shooting stars landed, and where it was that the moon disappeared to at dawn, and where it was that the sun sank at dusk. "If I look hard enough, I'll discover the secrets," he told himself.

But Willy Woodchuck spent the whole day and night in vain. "Oh dear, there must be some way to discover where the sky's shiny things disappear. If staring will do no good, then I'll travel!"

Yes, Willy decided to solve these mysteries if they took him to the other side of the road! The next morning he set forth. After a while he saw something! "There it is!" he shouted in triumph. "That's where the sun has fallen! Right there on that beach!" And he ran across the sand. But alas! when he reached the sun, he saw that it was only a big, orange beach ball lying on a dune.

Willy did not give up, however. On he continued in his search. A few evenings later he suddenly shouted, "Ah! I've found where the shooting stars land!" But alas! when he got closer, Willy saw that what he'd thought was a fallen star was nothing but a shiny dime lying in the road, gleaming brightly beneath a moonbeam. "I won't give up!" he said, and went on with his search. "The sky's shiny things must land somewhere when they fall. I'll discover them yet!"

Several days later Willy was sure he'd made a big find. Yes, there on the edge of a little town was the moon!

"At last!" Willy sighed, but alas!—when he got to the spot where it was he found that it wasn't a moon at all, not a real one. It was only a street light at the side of the road to mark the beginning of the town!

This time the little woodchuck was really discouraged. "I give up," he wept, wiping away a tear. "I might as well go home, nothing's real in the sky anyhow!" Willy turned around and headed again for his own backyard.

It was when he was halfway home, one moonless night, that the little woodchuck came upon a strange sight. A groundhog was kneeling beside a tree stump, holding against his eye a long, round object that Willy had never seen before. He was staring through it . . . and what was he staring at? The sky!

"My," thought Willy Woodchuck, "here's somebody else like me, somebody else who likes to look at the sky. But I wonder what he's using that long, round thing for?"

Just then the groundhog noticed Willy. He smiled. "Want to take a look through here?" he asked.

"I . . . I don't know what it is," confessed the woodchuck

"Why, it's a telescope. Look up at the sky through it. It brings everything much closer. See how real the stars become?"

Willy, gazing through the telescope, nodded eagerly. His eyes were shining brighter than the stars as he turned to the groundhog and asked, "Could I stay with you until a moonlit night comes along? I'd love to see the moon through this telescope."

"Of course!" the groundhog replied, delighted that he had found a companion who liked looking at the sky as much as he did. So, several nights later, Willy saw how the moon looked through a telescope—its mountains and valleys, its strange, mysterious areas.

"And the sun?" asked Willy. "Next, can I see the sun?" Yes, of course. They looked at the sun together.

"You're mighty interested in the sky, aren't you, Willy?" the groundhog smiled. "People who make a profession of studying the stars are called astronomers. Did you know that?"

"No, I didn't know that. In fact, I don't know anything about the sky. Why, before I met you, before you spent these days and nights explaining things to me, I thought all kinds of crazy things. For instance, I thought the sun was a big piece of gold! And that the moon was made of ivory! And the stars were diamonds!"

"I've got news for you, Willy—" the groundhog seated himself on the peak of a big rock and raised his telescope toward the sky, "—those aren't crazy thoughts! An astronomer might think so, but I'm no astronomer! If the sun isn't gold, and the moon isn't ivory, and the stars aren't diamonds, then I'm not the handsomest groundhog in this valley!"

Willy looked at the groundhog wonderingly for a second. But then, dismissing the question of whether or not the groundhog was handsome, he went on, "B-but I have been doing something that really is ridiculous—when I met you, I was searching for the places where the sky things land when they fall!"

"What's ridiculous?" answered the groundhog, jumping up. "C'mon, I'll help you find them!" and he grabbed Willy's hand and the two of them raced over the hills and disappeared in the sunset.
